TO. WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

This is Ahrum Noh, an energetic candidate for getting experience in Computer Engineering and Software development. To be honest, I have never thought about I could study and try to find a job in this field. Everything was just an instant like a day-dream.

I am a financial popular investor at Etoro (The biggest Fintech social trading company) since 2019, why I made a decision to learn coding at The University of Sydney was that it would be better and helpful to a trader for analysing possible scenario for future prediction about how the world would be changed, what aspects or features would be most important in the Fourth Industrial Revolution.

The beginning of journey at Computer was totally out of curiosity, not for a specific purpose at getting a future job. However, the more I study and spend time with coding, the eagerly I feel hungry and thirsty of learning innovative technology.

I also have a plan to further study at UNSW, major would be Financial Technology or Data Science, otherwise Artificial intelligence. In addition, I am self-employed, running my educational business at Chatswood since 2014. Therefore I am able to manage when to work or study freely and flexibly. Therefore if there is any position that I am able to contribute and help for your company, please contact me anytime. I will be very grateful to be a part of your team for a better world, and better future.

YOURS FAITHFULLY
